MERCURE KAKADU CROCODILE HOTEL

Situated in the heart of the World Heritage listed Kakadu National Park, & just 2 ½ hours drive from Darwin is the Indigenous owned Mercure Kakadu Crocodile Hotel. The hotel provides the ideal base to explore the magnificent expanse of Kakadu. Just a short drive from the hotel, are two of Kakadu National Park's most famous Aboriginal rock art galleries, Nourlangie Rock and Ubirr. There is also the Bowali & Warradjan cultural centres located within a short distance of the hotel which provide an insight into the culture and heritage of the park's traditional owners'. For those who love the Great Outdoors, Kakadu National Park offers visitors an amazing range of tours and activities. The Mercure Kakadu Crocodile Hotel is privileged to be situated in one of only a handful of World Heritage Listed National Parks that are listed for both their cultural and environmental significance. As such the hotel is committed to sustainable development for the environment and local people. The hotel has invested in green initiatives such as the Energy Eye System designed to increase energy efficiency in our rooms and reduce our carbon footprint, & Heat Pumps that dramatically reduce the amount of energy required to produce hot water. The hotel has also developed & operates an Indigenous Employment Program which provides education & employment for the local indigenous population in an effort to "reduce the gap" & ensure there are opportunities for the next generation of first Australian's.
